I will discuss the relaxed Dirichlet energy for maps from B^3 into S^2 (definitions, meaning, etc...), treating the regularity theory in particular. This field contains several long standing open questions. I will present a recent result which gives us a better understanding of the minimizers of this energy, and casts even more open questions.