

| Even though the full orchestra accompanies the singer in the succeeding Recitative, what makes it a recitative? | Name: |
|--|--|
| What about the remainder of the Symphony? Even though the full orchestra accompanies the singer in the succeeding Recitative, what makes it a recitative? How would you describe the musical texture in 6'00-6'22 (end of the Recitative)? When the chorus enters singing "And the glory" is it imitative? So you hear imitative polyphony later in the movement? If so, on what text? How would you compare the setting of "the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it" to Bach's setting of Jesus speaking? In the Hallelujah chorus, do you hear monophony? Homophony? | |
| How would you describe the musical texture in 6'00-6'22 (end of the Recitative)? When the chorus enters singing "And the glory" is it imitative? Is it contrapuntal? Do you hear imitative polyphony later in the movement? If so, on what text? How would you compare the setting of "the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it" to Bach's setting of Jesus speaking? In the Hallelujah chorus, do you hear monophony? Homophony? Polyphony? If there is polyphony, is one voice imitating another? Or do you hear other styles as well? | What about the remainder of the Symphony? |
| When the chorus enters singing "And the glory" is it imitative? | Even though the full orchestra accompanies the singer in the succeeding Recitative what makes it a recitative? |
| When the chorus enters singing "And the glory" is it imitative? Is it contrapuntal? Do you hear imitative polyphony later in the movement? If so, on what text? How would you compare the setting of "the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it" to Bach's setting of Jesus speaking? In the Hallelujah chorus, do you hear monophony? Homophony? Polyphony? If there is polyphony, is one voice imitating another? Or do you hear other styles as well? | How would you describe the musical texture in 6'00-6'22 (end of the Recitative)? |
| Do you hear imitative polyphony later in the movement? If so, on what text? How would you compare the setting of "the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it" to Bach's setting of Jesus speaking? In the Hallelujah chorus, do you hear monophony? Homophony?Polyphony? If there is polyphony, is one voice imitating another? Or do you hear other styles as well? | |
| How would you compare the setting of "the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it" to Bach's setting of Jesus speaking? In the Hallelujah chorus, do you hear monophony? Homophony?Polyphony? If there is polyphony, is one voice imitating another? Or do you hear other styles as well? | Is it contrapuntal? |
| Bach's setting of Jesus speaking? In the Hallelujah chorus, do you hear monophony? Homophony?Polyphony? If there is polyphony, is one voice imitating another? Or do you hear other styles as well? | Do you hear imitative polyphony later in the movement? If so, on what text? |
| Homophony?Polyphony? If there is polyphony, is one voice imitating another? Or do you hear other styles as well? | How would you compare the setting of "the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it" to Bach's setting of Jesus speaking? |
| Homophony?Polyphony? If there is polyphony, is one voice imitating another? Or do you hear other styles as well? | In the Halleluiah chorus, do you hear monophony? |
| If there is polyphony, is one voice imitating another? Or do you hear other styles as well? | |
| as well? | Homophony?Polyphony? |
| Of the three charges which is most like Dock and why? | If there is polyphony, is one voice imitating another? Or do you hear other styles as well? |
| If the three choruses, which is most like bach and why? | Of the three choruses, which is most like Bach and why? |
| | |